Remembrance Day

The Remembrance Sunday Service was very well attended. Wreathes were laid by representatives of Army, Navy and Air Force and the service included readings from servicemen's letters and topical poems. We appreciated the involvement of all the family members who attended, particularly James Morrish, Alan Takel and Ruby Martin who were kind enough to contribute readings. Malcolm played the organ and was accompanied by brass instruments played by Pam Melville with Louisa, Edward, Hannah and Josephine Vine.

The service continued outside for the re-dedication of the lychgate and war memorial. Although not late in the day it was so overcast that the band, who remained in the doorway of the church, appeared illuminated as they played the national anthem.

A cream tea was provided and this also provided an opportunity for family members to share photos and memorabilia of their relatives. This was a special afternoon—Pat Martin's efforts in publicising the restoration and event encouraged an excellent attendance including family members who might not otherwise have come and the Taylor family and friends produced some fine cakes. Finally a word of thanks to Richard Freeman who got so damp outside that his service sheet became illegible!

Sutcombe Community Primary School News

As part of our "I'm Alive" topic, before half term, the children at Sutcombe School enjoyed a visit from Mr Flack who is a Paramedic. Mr Flack taught them very important first aid skills such as how to bandage a bleeding, how to put someone in the recovery position and how to put someone's arm in a sling. The children also learnt how and when to call for an ambulance and got the opportunity to look around the ambulance car. The children were also lucky enough to meet PCSO Mark and PCSO Emma from Holsworthy Police Station to learn about road safety linked to their safeguarding assemblies. The children learnt the motto "Stop, look, listen, think" to help them remember how to cross the road safely. They also got to look around the police vehicles and try on the police uniform. The children's new topics are "Space and Beyond" in Class 2 and "Celebrations" in Class 1. Linked to the children's topic the children had a visit from Mr Barber who brought in his planetarium to teach the Class 2 children about space and the Class 1 children about sound and light. The children in Class 1 have been learning all about the Hindu festival Diwali and have been busy making rangoli patterns in art and non-fiction books all about Hinduism in literacy. The children are now looking forward to a visit from a Hindu to learn even more information and traditions later in the term.

2015 SONGS OF PRAISE BIG SING ON 13 SEPTEMBER.

Some of you reading this will have seen Songs of Praise on the TV on Sunday 20 September and enjoyed the programme 'Tribute to a Queen'. This was one of two programmes recorded on 13 September where I was privileged to be part of a 5,000 strong choir.

Having travelled to London by train earlier in the day and settled at my hotel just 100 yards from Paddington Station, I was able to walk through Hyde Park to the Hall and see on the way, the Princess of Wales Memorial Fountain and, in the distance, the Shard, the London Eye, Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey.

It was the third time I had taken part in the Big Sing and this was, without doubt, the best one. The presenters were Aled Jones and Josie d'Arby. A group of Chelsea Pensioners were in the audience. One of the guest singers was Alexander Armstrong who sang 'I would be True'. The Adventist Vocal Ensemble with the Junior School Choir of the year sang 'Sing', first performed for the 2012 Jubilee. Lesley Garrett sang 'Guide Me, O Thou Great Redeemer' which was absolutely fantastic. Laura Wright sang the Jubilee Song backed by the Gospel Choir of the Year and the Cor Tri Band who accompanied Cpl Regimental Sgt Major Gary Chilton in the solo 'I Vow to Thee my Country' was very moving. But the best part had to be the fanfare of trumpets from the Prince of Wales Division at the beginning of the programme and during the singing of the first hymn 'All People that on Earth Do Dwell'. That, together with the marvellous organ was truly out of this world and so enjoyable.

We also recorded the Christmas Big Sing with presenters Sally Magnusson and David Grant which will go out on 20 December and it is definitely one to watch. Alexander Armstrong sang 'In the Bleak Mid Winter'. Shaun O'Scoffrey (of Lion King fame) sang 'Do you hear what I hear?' Blues singer Ruby Turner, accompanied by the Gospel Choir of the Year sang 'O Holy Night', one of my favourites and so beautiful. The day was made for the lady sat beside me when Ronan Keating, former member of the very popular boy band, Boyzone, sang Silent Night. The Welch School (can't pronounce the name but Aled Jones could) who won Junior School Choir of the Year was absolutely delightful.

My hotel is already booked for next year's Big Sing on 11 September.
